

PRESS RELEASE

Send Me Weeks and Weeks of Life

Dec 19, 2008 – Jan 20, 2009

Opening Reception:

Fri Dec 19, 2008

For its inaugural exhibition, the space at 673 Meeker will present a partially finished construction site, a hybridized architecture, which consists of existing walls, and new, yet to be completed walls. In this sense the space becomes an embryonic entity, waiting to receive the breath of life, the breath of art. It is a sculpture celebrating the pursuit of the unknown, and that is why it will present itself, incomplete. Drawing on a wide range of artistic tropes and even wearing it's influences heavy on it's sleeve, Send me weeks and weeks of life can be many things. It is an abstraction par excellence, a practical material exploration, a celebration of the process of making, and above all a symbol for a pioneering spirit.

We built it, and through it's making, realized that it was already art. What a sweet surprise for a new beginning.
